"Whereas, The inhabitants of the State of New Jersey, through U.S. senators their representatives in the senate and general assembly, did, in the directed and representatives reyear eighteen hundred and seventy-one, pass a joint resolution desquested to prepare and support ignating the city of Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania, in which the Declaration of Independence was signed and promultary subscribers to the stock of the centennial beautiful finance. dredth anniversary of the same, and did appoint a committee to board of finance due confer with the authorities of the said city, in reference to the on their stock. holding of an international exhibition of science, arts, manufactures, and products of the soil and mine; and,

" Whereas, The said international exhibition was held in the name of and under the auspices of the government of the United States, in Fairmount park, city of Philadelphia, in eighteen hundred and seventy-six, it being the centennial anniversary year of American independence, and designed to commemorate and perpetuate the memories of the heroes, statesmen, and inhabitants of the colonies, who, through their wisdom, great sufferings, and sacrifices, achieved independence, established for the inhabitants thereof constitutional government, and registered it upon the roll of the family of nations as the government of the United States of America, in which name the people of all nations and governments were cordially invited to attend and participate in said international exhibition; and,

"Whereas, The invitation was accepted by all nations, who were represented through government officials and their people, bearing with them specimens of art and the products of the intelligent industries of their respective countries in their greatest perfection; and,

"Whereas, The large attendance and display by the people of all nations upon that occasion was not only complimentary to the memories of the founders of this republic, but highly instructive to the people of the United States, and produced the most beneficial effects upon the commercial, manufacturing, and agricultural industries of the countries, and was of incalculable influence in promoting sentiments of peace and good-will among the people of all the states of the American Union, as well as in elevating our country in the estimation of all nations who participated with us; and,

"Whereas, The contribution of one million dollars by the State of Pennsylvania, and one million five hundred thousand dollars by the city of Philadelphia, with the uniform courtesy and generous and liberal hospitality extended to the nation's invited guests during their attendance at the exhibition, by the citizens of that city, should be deemed by the people of the United States as a liberal and generous contribution in support of the honor and dignity of the nation; and,

"Whereas, The large amount necessary to defray the expenses of the commissioners appointed by the president of the United States, the proper officers, judges, and police force for the protection of the amount of valuable property on exhibition by all nations, was an unavoidable expenditure, as also for the erection of spacious buildings adapted to no other purpose, which buildings were sold at the close of the exhibition at a nominal price; and,

"Whereas, In view of the large contributions made by the State of Pennsylvania, the city and citizens of Philadelphia, to insure the success of the exhibition, and the fact that the people of the entire nation have and will continue to share alike its honors and its benefits, it is but proper that the government of the United States should bear a reasonable proportion of the expense, of which the balance due to stockholders is but a small amount; therefore,

- "(2) Be it resolved, That the governors of the other twelve of the thirteen original states be requested to send copies of this preamble and resolution to the senators and representatives of their respective states, requesting them to use their influence to have the great centennial anniversary of our nation's independence closed up consistently with the honor and dignity of a nation holding so high a position in the estimation of the civilized world; and,

"(3) Be it resolved, That the governor of this state be and is hereby requested to transmit an engrossed copy of this preamble and resolution to the president of the United States, vice-president, and speaker of the house of representatives, and engrossed copies to the governors of the twelve states as aforesaid."

(1) That we fully adopt said preamble, and the senators and representatives in congress from the State of New Hampshire are requested to ascertain the balance due to subscribers to the centennial board of finance, and to prepare and support an act appropriating the same from the treasury of the United States; and,

APPENDIX.

OPINION OF THE SUPREME COURT ON THE LAW AUTHORIZING TOWNS TO EXEMPT MANUFACTURING PROPERTY FROM TAXATION.

To the House of Representatives: -

The undersigned respectfully comply with your resolution requesting our opinion on the question, whether the law authorizing towns to exempt manufacturing property from taxation is a violation of the bill of rights.

"Towns may by vote exempt from taxation, for a term not exceeding ten years, any establishment therein, or proposed to be erected or put in operation therein, and the capital used in operating the same, for the manufacture of fabrics of cotton, wool, wood, iron, or any other material; and such vote shall be a contract binding for the term specified therein."—General Laws, chap. 53, sect. 10.

The title of the original act (Laws 1860, chap. 2,361) was "An act to encourage manufactures." The general purpose of the law was to increase employments, means of support and profit, home markets, business, and population, by the extension of manufacturing industry, upon which the general prosperity of the state is so largely dependent. Another purpose was to increase the future revenues of the state, the counties, and the towns, by inducing home capital to remain, and foreign capital to come, for permanent investment here, subject to taxation after the expiration of the temporary exemption. For similar purposes, similar encouragement is given to certain agricultural improvements, and the building of railroads. General Laws, chap. 53, sect. 4; chap. 62, sect. The exemption in each case is limited to ten years. A perpetual alienation of the whole power of taxation would be the destruction of government; and the dangerous tendency of legislation suspending any part of that power, for any future period, is manifest. But we are not aware that these laws, encouraging the extension of agriculture, manufactures, and railways, have, thus far, practically impaired the efficiency of the government, or that the public has not received the benefits to which it was entitled, and which the legislature sought to gain by the promise of exemption.

By the offer and promise to exempt from taxation such property as the owner shall, in a new investment, devote to a business of 424 Appendix.

public utility, and by an acceptance of that offer, and a new investment of money according to its terms, an agreement is made that contains every element of a contract binding upon both parties, if they are capable of making it. There are parties, mutual assent, consideration, and performance of the contract on one side. supreme court of the United States held it to be a valid contract, protected by the constitution of the United States,—a contract, the obligations of which the state cannot impair. Its validity was understood not to be an open question. By the stipulation that "such vote shall be a contract binding for the term specified therein," the state held out the decisions of the highest judicial tribunal, as a ground on which the promise of the state could be safely relied By that stipulation, the state said to owners of money, "In addition to such faith as our word is entitled to, we invite you to put your trust in a binding contract, the constitutional inviolability of which has been settled by the court whose judgment is final and If you doubt our honor, you can confide in the conclusive. national guaranty."

Having thus briefly stated the situation of the parties under the contracts of ten-years' exemption heretofore made, and shown that the question of the performance of those contracts by the government involves a question of common honesty, we may not be justified in considering the expediency or the legality of a breach of faith, and a repudiation of the solemn obligations which the government understandingly proposed and fairly entered into. When the nature of this case is understood, no legal advice can be necessary for the guidance of the party whose promise remains, in whole or in part, to be performed.

But the credit of a trustworthy people, indispensable to the strength of the state in war or peace, ought not to be weakened by any groundless distrust of the legal validity of public contracts. The constitution of New Hampshire makes it the duty of the legislators and magistrates to inculcate and constantly adhere to honesty and justice as virtues necessary to preserve the blessings of liberty and good government. Constitution, part 1., article 38; part 11., article 38. As magistrates, sharing that duty with the legislature, we are not prepared to hold that it would not be illegally violated by allowing the state or any of its municipal agencies to be guilty of the fraud and tyranny of breaking such contracts of tenyears' exemption as have been made with manufacturers, railroads, and farmers.

But, if the true construction of the state constitution did not authorize the making of those contracts, they are binding nevertheless. Laws authorizing such contracts for ten years were passed in the last century, soon after the date of the constitution, and we are not aware that their constitutionality was questioned by the generation that made and adopted the constitution. And, notwithstanding what was said by the court (in 4 N. H. 565, and in Brewster v. Hough, 10 N. H. 138, 147), the construction established when the present contracts were made,—the construction acquiesced in, always acted upon, and never decided to be erroneous,—was, that such contracts are constitutional. So fully and so universally has this been understood, that the public declaration in the act of 1860, setting forth the binding nature of these contracts, was repeated by the legislature in 1867, in 1871, and in 1878. General Statutes, chap. 49, sect. 9; Laws 1871, chap. 25; General Laws. chap. 53, sect. 10. Contracts, valid by the well-settled, practical construction of the constitution when they were made, cannot be invalidated by an amendment of the constitution (Dodge r. Woolsey, 18 How. 331, 360; J. B. Bank r. Skelley, 1 Black 436, 449, 450: P. R. Co. v. Maguire, 20 Wall 36), or by a judicial change of construction. Rowan r. Runnels, 5 How. 134, 139; O. L. I. & T. Co. r. Debolt, 16 How. 416, 431, 432; Pease r. Peck, 18 How. 595, 599; Gelpcke r. Dubuque, 1 Wall. 175, 206; Havemeyer v. Iowa County, 3 Wall. 294, 303; Chicago v. Sheldon, 9 Wall. 50, 55, 56; Olcott r. Supervisors, 16 Wall. 678, 690. Should it be now decided that the true construction of the constitution does not authorize these ten-years' exemption contracts, the decision could have no retrospective effect: no such contracts hereafter made would be binding; but those heretofore made, under a different construction, would remain in force. Upon these principles of integrity and fair dealing the government was founded.

Whether the true construction of the constitution authorizes the making of ten-years' tax-exemption contracts, is a question on which, we conceive, the house cannot need our opinion. So long as the existing laws remain unrepealed, and the constitutional construction heretofore adopted remains unchanged, contracts hereafter made under those laws and that construction will be valid. If the legislature, for any reason, wish to prevent the making of any more such contracts, their object can be accomplished by a repeal of the laws authorizing them. As contracts made before the repeal could not be affected by the repeal, and as the power of making future contracts under those laws would be taken away by the repeal, we see no contingency in which the house can desire our opinion on the question whether a new construction of the constitution should be introduced. And the proper investigation of that question would require so much time, that a well-considered answer could not probably be given at the present session. On the point which we have undertaken to decide, having duly deliberated, and earefully examined the authorities of other jurisdictions, we entertain no doubt.
